Everett Dean Martin Will Give First Lecture In Series Tuesday Evening

Nature of Educated Man to Be Topic Discussed By Speaker

PROGRAM IS FREE TO STUDENT BODY

Noted Educator Is Director Of People's Institute In New York

Everett Dean Martin, A. B., Litt. D., will speak in Mead chapel, Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock, on the subject, "What Is an Educated Person?". This lecture will be the first of the series available to students under the entertainment fee.

Dr. Martin is director of the People's Institute in New York, the largest center for free discussion of political and educational questions in America. Since 1916 he has led the experiment in adult education at Cooper Union.

He has been termed by the New York Sun as the "almost magic leader of vast audiences". John Cowper Powys, author and literary authority, says, "Everett Dean Martin has a ripe and rich culture which he understands how to communicate to others. I have seen him handle large and turbulent crowds with masterly poise and discretion.—He has the gift of extending to other minds the psychological temper of his own refinement and his own tolerance and his own taste."

Among the books which he has written are "The Meaning of a Liberal Education", "Liberty", "The Behavior of Crowds", and "Civilizing Ourselves".

Dr. Martin is a consultant on adult education at New York university, and was selected by Brown university to give the Culver Lectures, an honor granted only to those who have made an original contribution to historical and social knowledge.

Dr. William Beebe will speak November 8, his subject being, "Five Hundred Fathoms Down".

Other talks scheduled are by Count Byron de Porok on Ethiopia; a lecture on big game hunting in Africa by Major A. Radclyffe Dugmore; and an address by John Mason Brown.

College Welcomes Freshmen Classes

Registration, Lectures and Several Receptions Held In Orientation Program

Middlebury's 1935-36 session was opened Monday, September 23, with the annual freshman week meetings and receptions.

Following a qualifying examination in English literature, freshman week commenced with a mass meeting in the Playhouse Monday evening. At 8:30 p. m. the first-year students were given an opportunity to meet the members of the faculty at an informal reception at the library.

Registration for the freshmen of both colleges opened at the gymnasium Tuesday morning. A class-get-acquainted-outing was held in the afternoon on the women's hockey field. The principal feature of the gathering was a scavenger hunt, planned and conducted by the governing board of the Mountain club and members of the women's athletic association.

Dean Eleanor S. Ross and officers of the Student Union addressed the freshman women at a meeting Wednesday morning. The same group was entertained in the afternoon at a tea in Pearsons social hall, where members of the upper classes described many of the extra-curricular activities of the

NOTICE TO FRESHMEN

The Middlebury CAMPUS begins its thirty-third year with this publication. This weekly publication offers a splendid opportunity for journalistic experience to the members of the class of 1939 of both colleges.

A series of editorial tryout meeting begins Friday afternoon at 4:30 in room 9, on the third floor of Old Chapel. Throughout the following weeks until CAMPUS elections in March, an elementary course in college journalism will be offered in the form of lectures and discussion groups. Occasional review quizzes will be given. Details of the instruction will be outlined Friday.

The CAMPUS has proven to be an activity which keeps its tryouts in constant touch with the life at Middlebury. Freshmen are urged to begin at once.

Casey Jones '15 Is Speaker at Smoker

Men's College Assembles For Annual Middlebury Night in the Gymnasium

Following one of the oldest of the Panther traditions, Middlebury men met in McCullough gymnasium Thursday evening for the annual smoker, and Middlebury night celebration. Casey Jones '15, noted connoisseur of aernautics and aviation, was guest speaker.

The entire program, under the direction of Charles H. Startup '36, as master of ceremonies, represented an effort to familiarize entering men with the spirit and tradition of Middlebury and to present an opportunity of meeting the men of the three upper classes.

President Paul D. Moody, first of the faculty speakers, emphasized the type of sportmanship and courage for which the Blue and White is noted. And making an appeal to the freshman class for its preservation and continuation. Mr. Waldo Heinrichs, commencing his second year as instructor at Middlebury, put his message to the men in the words of President Theodore Roosevelt to the effect that neither victory nor loss was important when the competitors posessed the spirit of sportsmanship.

Mr. Jones, thoroughly conversant with Middlebury and college life, selected subjects with popular appeal and proved intensely interesting with his narrations of Middlebury life back in the days of 1911-15 and the present contrast. His escapades in aviation, interspersed with genuine Vermont humor, topped off an excellent talk.

Annual Middlebury Night Held by Women Saturday

Middlebury women, including the wives of professors and women members of the faculty, attended the annual women's Middlebury night program Saturday in the McCullough gymnasium.

Two reels of mountain club pictures were shown by Margaret W. Scherholz '37, equipment chairman of the Mountain club. The seniors, under the direction of Virginia Rich '36, gave two skits, the first depicting "A Freshman's Conception of a Gym Informal", and the second, "The Plain Unvarnished Truth at Middlebury".

A portrayal of the tribulations of juniors and seniors amid the swarm of popular freshmen was presented by the juniors. Jennie-Belle Perry '38 then gave an impersonation of a woman lecturer. Last on the program was a fashion show by the sophomore women. In this display the styles of modern and old college clothes were contracted.

President Moody Delivers Opening Address In Chapel

"Sense of Values" Principal Objective to Seek From College

SAYS MONEY IS POOR APPRAISAL OF WORTH

True Education Is Learning To Accomplish Work As Scheduled

President Paul D. Moody officially opened the one hundred thirty-sixth year of Middlebury College last Thursday morning, delivering his annual fall address to the student body in Mead chapel.

Speaking on the subject "A Sense of Values", he characterized the attainment of this objective as the chief advantage to be sought in four years at college. Indeed, he said that knowledge, or ignorance, of true value constitutes the difference between the educated and the uneducated person.

In discussing the worth of things, President Moody explained that most people nearly always turn to valuation in terms of dollars and cents. But at best, this is a narrow and unsatisfactory measure, he said.

"For example, when we ask what a certain man is worth, we immediately say he has so much money, or that he owns so many dollars worth of securities or land. But how can one measure the worth of a Lincoln to humanity?" he asked. "Poor in worldly goods yet his work was of immeasurable value to his country and the world."

But here in college, the president stated, there is a priceless opportunity

Construction Of New Dormitory Unit In Women's College At Middlebury To Be Ready For June Dedication

Stone Walls Will Resemble Early Structures on Men's Campus

SPACE TO PROVIDE FOR 129 STUDENTS

Necessary Funds Obtained Through Disposal of Battell Forest

Middlebury College's new women's dormitory, which has been under construction since June, is progressing rapidly.

This building is the first unit in the $3,500,000 project for a new women's college, which was designed by Dwight J. Baum, New York architect. Money for the undertaking was obtained through the sale of Battell forest to the federal government for national forest purposes. Under the will of Joseph Battell who died in 1915, leaving the land to Middlebury, any benefit accruing to the college from possession of the forest was to be devoted to the advantage of the women.

The new dormitory which is being constructed by Hegeman, Harris Co. Inc., New York general contractors, is to have accomodations for 129 women. The plans provide for two entirely separate parts, each having its own dining and social rooms, served from one kitchen and with room for 60. On every floor there will be suites, consisting of two bedrooms connected by a study, and in addition, kitchenettes and other general service rooms. A large recreational hall will occupy the basement on the east side.

The exterior of the building is to be of native limestone, quarried three miles from Middlebury in the town of Weybridge, conforming with the older college units. Vermont marble will be used for outside trim and a great part of the interior finish.

The plans and progress at present indicate that the dormitory will be completed in time to be dedicated at the commencement exercises in June.

Three Professors Added To Faculty

Professor Barnum, Doctor Turner and Miss Oetjen To Teach Here This Year

Prof. Harry H. Barnum, of Robert College, Istanbul, Turkey, and Dr. Hamish McNeill Turner, of the University of Edinburgh, are teaching here this year as exchange professors. Miss Mary Elizabeth Oetjen, of Eatontown, New Jersey, has joined the Middlebury College faculty as an instructor.

Professor Barnum is teaching mathematics in the absence of Miss Ellen E. Wiley who is on sabbatical leave. In exchange, Prof. Burt A. Hazeltine has gone to Istanbul to become a member of the mathematics department there for a year. After graduating from Amherst college in 1900 with a B. A. degree, Prof. Barnum did graduate work at Princeton university and at the University of Chicago, where he received his M. A. degree in 1909. He became an instructor at Robert college in 1900, and, since 1911, has been the head of the mathematics department there.

Dr. Turner is taking the place of Prof. Ennis B. Womack, who has gone to Scotland to teach chemistry for one year. Dr. Turner took his B. Sc. degree in 1932 at the University of Edinburgh, and, was awarded his Ph.D. last June

Miss Oetjen is assisting in the English department, while Dr. Douglas S. Beers and Prof. H. Goddard Owen are absent on sabbatical leave. After receiving a B. S. degree here in 1931, Miss Oetjen studied at Oxford in 1933 and at Cornell university last summer.

Dr. T. Z. Koo to Address Student Body Tomorrow

Dr. T. Z. Koo, prominent Chinese lecturer, will come to Middlebury tomorrow to give a series of talks designed to give students a better understanding of present-day conditions in China.

Tomorrow evening at 7:30 in Mead chapel, Dr. Koo will address students in an open meeting of the Liberal club. He will speak in chapel Thursday and Friday.

Alpha Sigma Phi will entertain Dr. Koo at luncheon tomorrow and Beta Kappa has been asked to join them afterwards. He will be the guest of Sigma Phi Epsilon at dinner and will meet Delta Kappa Epsilon there after dinner.

Friday Chi Psi and the non-fraternity men have invited him to lunch and dinner. Delta Upsilon will visit the Chi Psi house after lunch, while Kappa Delta Rho is expected to visit him at Hepburn after dinner.

Ticket Drive For Dramatics Opens

Prof. V. Spencer Goodreds To Call Candidates Soon For First Presentation

Activities of the college dramatics department officially opened Monday morning with the annual fall ticket drive for student membership.

Although the ticket drive closes this evening, students are not barred from obtaining membership at a later date. Season passes may be secured at any time from members of the play production classes, or at the college playhouse. A slight correction should be made in the statement presented in chapel this week that the dramatic club tickets would cover the entire cost of all plays. For admission to one or two of the longer productions, a small additional fee will be charged.

Professor Goodreds will soon issue first calls for tryouts to prepare for the initial production to be presented the latter part of this month, the title of which will be announced next week. In addition to three long plays of three acts each, a series of one act experimentals will be conducted by the classes in play production. The more lengthy plays in last year's schedule included Capek's "Rossums Universal Robots", "Everyman", the morality play, and Geyer's 'Candle-Light".

WELCOME 1939

Noted men of the business world, speaking before groups of future rotarians, have often remarked: "Ah, yes, no young man could better occupy himself during these depression years than by going to college". You members of the class of 1939 are indeed fortunate to be among the privileged group who are able to attend college in these trying times. But you are doubly fortunate since many signs indicate that you will set forth, four years hence, into a world more able to receive and occupy you than the world which has unwillingly received members of recent college classes. However, you can scarcely expect to find a world comparable to the glamorous and giddy twenties. In the past six years, many thoroughly prepared college men and women have been unable to find a market for their services. By 1939 it is reasonable to expect that those who have trained carefully will be able to find more congenial employment. It is your responsibility to yourself to be adequately prepared when you must face a highly competitive business world.

In the colorful light of football, social life, and fraternities, the primary purpose of college—scholarship—gets off to a poor start. Still the fact remains that only the vital education which is made a part of ourselves remains when the shell of less worthy attractions has worn off. You members of the class of 1939 may fool yourselves by accepting for your models those collegians, always to be found, who take "pipes", never "crack" a book, and spend their time seeking amusements to relieve the boredom. Your time in college is your own, to spend as you see fit; but it will glide by more rapidly than you realize. Almost unlimited opportunities for self-education are yours at Middlebury. If you are sincere you will soon discover that you have quietly found your place as a part of the college. Spend your time wisely and you may partake of all the diversions you enjoy and still keep up to date with your studies.

MIDDLEBURY NIGHT

A few years ago a CAMPUS editorial severely reprimanded the men's college for a scanty upperclass turnout at Middlebury Night which completely wrecked an otherwise well planned program. It is a pleasure at this time to be able to commend Middlebury men on their fine spirit which made possible the unquestioned success of the annual meeting held last Friday night. Middlebury night was established about ten years ago as a fitting climax to freshmen week. Changed several years ago into an informal smoker, it has made its place among the traditions of the men's college. Such a meeting has proved its worth in hastening the acquaintance of freshmen with the college and upperclassmen.

We congratulate those who had the responsibility of planning this year's program and all who took part in its presentation. We further suggest that, in the future, an attempt be made to secure visiting speakers who can command the interest and attention of undergraduate men in the manner of our own Casey Jones.

CURRENT GLIMPSES

RELIEF—The story on the $3,300,000,000 relief bill is this. Senator Bob Wagner, New York, in drawing up the bill asked his secretary if the bill included $300,000,000 appropriation for New York. Secretary misunderstood, thinking that Wagner said to include that sum—which already was there. Hence, odd sum in the bill.

ITALY-ETHIOPIA — Government propaganda would have you believe the United States will continue to be neutral in event of conflict. They point especially to embargo on arms and munitions. But they do not mention that there is no provision against loans. Neither do they tell you that Army training has been stiffened; that the General Staff is quietly working out its plans; that in the past three months Ambassadors Grew, Japan; Bingham, England; Owen, Denmark; Montgomery, Hungary; Fish, Egypt; Cudahy, Poland; Macmurray, Latvia; Strauss, France, and Caffery from Cuba have graced the steps of the White House, after a call from the chief to come home. Sign: Preparedness.—War probably will not start for another month, as the most dangerous time in Ethiopia is AFTER the rainy season. Malaria. Meanwhile Ill Duce flirts with the League, gains time, and sends more troops to the front. Will probably act with the League as did Japan.—Observers point out that England is well aware that her position might become serious. Support by Ireland, in a brillant speech at Geneva by DeValera won many Irish supporters here.—Italy has forced Japan into the background for the past few weeks, but we read Chino-Russo-Japanese news in the press. Another outbreak is expected in a short time. It will work to Mussolini's advantage.

CONSUMER'S RESEARCH—All that glitters is not gold. CR, famous for its liberal policies, has a strike on its hands. Methods which were decried by CR in "Partners in Plunder" are being used. Strikebreakers, "detectives", have been hired by CR to quell strikers—yet they discredit large industrial companies for using such methods. This is not the first labor trouble CR has had. A former vice-president of CR quit that organization because he was in disagreement with CR on its policy of firing men after a few months of service. Said vice-president founded another organization similar to CR, located at Croton-on-the-Hudson.

NOTES—Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture in the present administration is the son of Henry C. Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture under Harding . . . Howell Hopson, Associate Gas & Electric Co. magnate, whose activities are under federal scrutiny as a second Insull, started his career as an enemy of trusts and utilities. He served on the I. C. C. and the New York State Public Service Commission . . .. Efforts are being expended to pass state NRA laws . . . Auburn and White motors are testing a Diesel engine for autos . . . Talk of passing the Norris amendment requiring a two-thirds vote by Supreme Court to invalidate laws has subsided—Supreme Court has been unanimous anyhow.

HERE AND THERE

—by Isabel H. Davies '36

Wars and rumors of wars may trouble our international horizon, but here in Middlebury we return to the cheery sound of workmen building for the future before seven o'clock in the morning. But we love the gentle Koehring monster when he is still.

A great many people would like to know the proposed name of the new dormitory. Its walls may attain the maturity of those fellow rocks on Old Stone Row, yet we cannot help but feel that its fame will never surpass that of Batcot, whited sepulchre though she is, for who has not heard of the far-flung Battell line.

Everybody had a pleasant vacation, we suppose, and is glad to shake another year from its mothballs. Gone is the summer romance, fading, perhaps, like your cherished tan, but as a friend of ours has remarked, how dull not to have any to remember.

There are innumerable stories of freshmen blunders which we might relate. The seniors, however, have been taking a few jolts lately at the hands of underclassmen and friendly villagers. You've probably heard of the four seniors who were shown through the Abernethy wing of the library during the freshmen exam in stack-finding. Then there was another girl who was pursued by schoolchildren who begged to see her name-tag. She had hard work to convince them of her seniority.

Have we no alphabet bureau to provide for proper introduction of Weybridge inmates to the curious gentlemen in the class of 1939? Storming the hall and ordering the girl on house-duty to "bring down the women" might be known as a surprise attack if the girls themselves were not simply dying to catch sight of those cunning little hats.

For years we've been singing about a hot time in the old town, presumably Middlebury, tonight, but when it actually happened at Hillside the other night, almost everybody was unaware that anything was going on, except those who live there. The chief concern of one freshman was when she would be allowed to go back to bed.

COMMUNICATION

To the Editor of the CAMPUS:

A new system has been inaugurated this year in the dormitories of the men's college, whereby each dormitory will have a chairman and these in turn will have assistants in each section of the dormitory.

The chairman in Painter hall is Henry F. MacLean '36 who has as his assistants G. Dudley Phinney '37 and Frederic D. Manchester '37. In Hepburn Ralph H. Meacham '36 is dormitory chairman being assisted by John F. Darrow '37, Paul W. Foster '37, and Milton K. Lins '38; while in Starr hall Elwood A. Hoxie '36 is chairman, assisted by Clarence W. Harwood '36.

Any man making unnecessary noise or disturbance in a dormitory will be given a warning by the chairman or his assistants, and if this disturbance continues thereafter, the offender will be made to appear before the dormitory committee, composed of the dormitory chairmen, who may take any action that they deem advisable.

This plan was drawn up with Dean Hazeltine last year and it is hoped that the residents of the men's dormitories will cooperate with the dormitory committee by keeping radios low and making as little unnecessary noise as possible, especially during the evening hours.

President Moody Speaks at Vespers

"Loyalty to One's Ideals" Is Used as Theme for First Sunday Evening Service

Loyalty to one's ideals was the theme on which President Paul D. Moody based his sermon Sunday at the first vespers service of the year.

President Moody took his text from the book of Daniel which, he explained, was written to encourage the Jews during their persecution. He pointed out that Daniel, in common with other Jews who were in exile, felt a deep nostalgia, not only for the hills around Jerusalem, but also for his God. Hence his gesture of praying three times daily with his windows opened towards Jerusalem was a gesture of loyalty. "Loyalty may be a splendid thing bestowed upon an unworthy object", said President Moody, "but it is a beautiful thing whether it is bestowed upon a worthy object or an unworthy one."

The speaker admitted the necessity of adjusting oneself to one's environment but he warned that it is often difficult to determine just how closely one should adhere to one's surroundings. "The danger of adjusting oneself too completely is as great as a refusal to adjust at all;" he said, "that danger is in the loss of individuality." According to President Moody this inward non-conforming of Daniel's was possibly responsible for his power. He advised being true to oneself if one wants the greatest love and respect of one's fellows.

Pointing out that people are inclined to live in the present, forgetting the valuable things which belong to the past, President Moody said, "The past is a constant reminder of the unseen, and we need a sense of the unseen for balance. Keep your windows open toward the past and learn to see the present in the light of what has gone before."

"Daniel was an idealist," said President Moody, "and three times a day the thought of the past and of the unseen helped him."

Dr. G. Glenn Atkins Will Speak at Sunday Vespers

The speaker at Sunday chapel will be Dr. G. Glenn Atkins from Auburn Theological Seminary, Auburn, N. Y.

Dr. Atkins attended Ohio State University, Cincinnati Law School and Yale Divinity School. He has preached in Greenfield, Mass., Burlington, Detroit, and Providence. Before his present position as professor of homiletics and sociology at Auburn Theological Seminary, he was head master of history at Mt. Herman.

He was awarded the Church Peace Union prize for his essay on international peace in 1914, has written several books, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Nine Fellowships Will Be Available

University Association Plan Provides Foreign Study For Women Graduates

Nine fellowships for graduate study will be available to American women during the academic year 1936-37, according to a recent announcement by the American Association of University women.

These scholarships, ranging from twelve hundred to two thousand dollars in value, are designed, in general, for candidates who have completed two years of residence work for the Ph. D. degree or who have already received the degree. Opportunity for graduate study and research in arts, science, literature, and government is available for those candidates who show the most promise of distinction. In many cases provision is made for study in a foreign country.

Detailed information concerning these fellowships may be secured from the secretary of the Committee of Fellowship Awards, 1634 1 Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., or from the Alumnae Secretary, North Painter hall. Applications and recommendations for these fellowships must reach the secretary of the committee on fellowship awards not later than December 1, 1935.

Sheldon Museum To Exhibit Bibles

Friday Marks Anniversary Of Coverdale Publication Using First English Text

The Sheldon Art Museum in Middlebury will be open to undergraduates Friday afternoon from 1 to 5 p. m. at which time an exhibition of old Bibles will be on display.

This opening celebrates the 400th anniversary of the publication date of the first English Bible translation, the Coverdale edition. Over fifty Bibles tracing the history of printing from the 15th century to the present will be on exhibition.

Among the Bibles of special historical interest will be a Nuremburg edition of 1497, three "Breeches" of different dates, two Vulgates, the first Bible printed in America, Edinburgh printings of 1785 and 1799, and several dozen copies notable in Vermont religious and press history, including the first Vermont Bible published at Windsor in 1812, four from Brattleboro presses dated 1816, 1834, 1836, 1838, and the first lectern Bible used in the Middlebury Congregational church in 1809.

During the past summer, more than half of the museum was completely redecorated and rearranged, including two library rooms, a colonial bedroom, a Sheldon memorial suite, an armory, an omnium gatherum, and two rooms temporarily displaying the Bible exhibit. Exclusive of the collection of Bibles there will be exhibited during the afternoon many colonial and Indian relics, a collection of sconces, lanterns, and lamps tracing the history of American illumination, a number of primitive American paintings, a library of Vermontiana, pottery, an unusual collection of more than fifty flintlocks, rifles and sidearms, the "Petrified" Indian boy, several dozen Windsor chairs of various types, Grandfather and banjo clocks and many other valuable pieces of furniture.

There will be an admission charge of twenty-five cents.

German Club Will Meet Tonight in Pearsons Hall

Karl Wolf, German exchange student, will be the guest speaker at the first meeting of the German club to be held in Pearsons social hall at 7:30 this evening. His subject will be "Student Life in Nazi Germany".

An open discussion will follow the talk, which will be given in English for the benefit of the beginning students. This meeting will be open to all who are interested. Payment of fifty cents annual dues will be required for admission to later programs.

So What?

by Heinz

SO THEY PICKED UP THEIR MARBLES AND WALKED AWAY . . . and that left Middlebury, Norwich and St .Michael's free to play all by themselves in their own quiet way, in their own back yards and under their own little rules. However, the situation can hardly be dismissed in such a trite "fare-thee-well-Annabelle" manner, and does warrant some investigation and comment.

First, the Situation

The University of Vermont athletic council at a meeting held last week supposedly rocked the state and threatened the very stability of the Green Mountains themselves, when it voted that the Catamount shall no longer be considered as a member of the Green Mountain conference. What is really surprising to note though, is that the lakeside brethren have also unearthed some reasons for their action —and reasons that don't sound half bad.

They correctly claim that the other state institutions who have for so long been bonded together with them in the conference, under the faded banner of sports for sport's sake, are not observing the same rules as are they. These rules are namely those applying to the one year ineligibility of athletes, affecting both freshmen and transfers. Middlebury and Norwich, it appears, have a one half year ruling, while St. Michael's has none whatsoever. Vermont then is the only one of the quartet adhering to the year policy. With this in mind, one cannot help but regard the Catamount action as evidence of an "everyone-is-out-of-step-but-our-Willie" attitude, on the part of the Green and Gold strategists.

The Vermont Side

Vermont has a bit more on the ball than just that, however. Undoubtedly they are right in claiming the virtues of the one year rule. For both the school and the individuals representing it, it is the better policy, and the ideal sports setup for a college does involve adhering to this plan and providing freshman teams in all varsity sports. Very few frosh are good varsity material during their first year, and there are none who could not stand a year's seasoning with a first year aggregation.

There are other factors that enter into the question too. The general lack of confidence of freshmen and their general inferior feeling makes them lax about considering themselves seriously as varsity material. This may be brought on by various reasons, one of which may be the habit of athletically inclined fraternity brothers to lower the backslapping of rushing week a few feet and increase the length and power of their arms by the addition of smooth but stalwart paddles. Let us agree then, that a freshman's confidence might successfully be built up to the advantage of himself and his school by success in first year athletics.

The Hitch

To provide for such a program takes money, and there lies the hitch. At present, neither Middlebury nor the other mentioned teams to whose policy Vermont objects, have either the facilities, coaches or finances to carry out such a plan. Consequently they must continue to work along present lines until time can bring about changes in the way of field houses, and the wherewithall with which to fill them.

The Catamount will no doubt continue to meet Middlebury and the other teams, and the rivalry will probably be just as keen. If the Green and Gold forgets it is in Vermont where one does as Vermonters do, I say, "Let them pick up their marbles and resign from the conference". As is undoubtedly the case, if this move endangers the health and continuance of the Green Mountain conference, I only repeat, "So what?"

SPORTS

Blue and White Opens Schedule By Tying Union Team Here, 6-6

Wet Weather and Slippery Field Hamper Play Of Elevens

Under the handicap of weather that is gradually becoming known as characteristic of the opening of Middlebury football seasons, the gridiron forces representing Middlebury and Union struggled into a 6-6 deadlock on Porter field Saturday afternoon.

It was the first contest of the season for both elevens and as they trotted out on the field they were greeted by a steady rain, the like of which had fallen for more than twenty-four hours and left the turf soggy, slippery and anything but ideal for football. Hampered by such adverse conditions the contest offered little in the way of satisfying grid-play. The kicking of both elevens was the outstanding feature of the game. Craig of the Blue and White exhibited rare ability as time after time he placed his punts out of reach of the Union safety man, while Krull of the visitors got exceptional distance on his spirals during the afternoon.

Elevens are Alike

They were much alike, these two elevens, as they faced each other Saturday afternoon. Union came north with seven lettermen, six of whom saw service in the line, and Middlebury faced them with a team likewise lacking in veteran backs. The Panther forward wall sorely missed the services of Hoffman, veteran tackle now on the injured list, as time after time the Union backs sliced off left tackle for gains of various dimensions. The new Panther backs, however, performed reasonably well and tended to brighten the aspect of things. Leete and Chalmers, alternating at the quarter-back position did most of the gaining via the ground route, with the latter's run back of punts reminding one of last season's Williams, and his off tackle slants bringing back memories of the graduated Boehm. Captain Golembeske carried the blocking burden as usual, but also managed to tear off several good gains when he carried the ball. In the line Hoxie and MacLean turned in the best performances.

Midd Receives Kick-off

Middlebury received the opening kick-off and punted on the first play. Union tried the line once and likewise punted. On the next play Golembeske tore off left tackle for ten yards and a first down. Ruggieri then spun through the center for nine yards and with a Union penalty for off-side, the Panthers seemed to be well on their way. A fumble, however, stopped this march and the play was steady for a while, until the visitors made their premier first down as Brown skirted the left side of the line for ten yards. When Middlebury finally regained possession of the ball later in the period, it blossomed forth with the best play of the afternoon, as with perfect blocking, Leete tore around right end on a double reverse for another ten yards.

Shortly after this Chalmers replaced Leete and did most of the ground gaining from then on. In the second period, the Panther penetrated as far as the 20 yard line, from which spot Hoxie attempted a field goal that fell just short of its mark. A Union fumble, however, gave the ball back to Middlebury and a pass, Chalmers to Dawes, put the ball once more in scoring position. Dawes made two yards on a buck to give the Panther a first down on the Garnet fifteen yard line.

It was now that Middlebury saw visions of a score in the offing. Chalmers made five yards, Phillipson added another, and after Dawes was held for no gain, Chalmers made it first down on the five yard line. There was no stopping the Panther at this point and, after Chalmers hit left tackle for three yards, Dawes took it over the right side of the line for the score. The attempt for the extra point failed as a bad pass from center necessitated Hoxie running the ball.

Union Gains Strength

The second half saw Union come back with renewed life and receiving the kick-off make three first downs in rapid succession as Krull and Brown hit the line with continued success. Finally, with the ball within scoring distance, Krull took the play on a reverse and running wide threw a slow floater that Waldron managed to rescue with a spectacular catch and carry into the end zone to knot the count.

Grid Team Meets Williams Saturday

Purple, Confident after Win From Mass. State Will Present Veteran Eleven

In the season's second strenuous football battle, the Panther gridmen will meet the Williams college eleven on Porter field Saturday.

This week's football encounter will bring a busload of Purple players confident in overcoming the Blue and White team. After marching through Massachusetts state in their opening contest by a 28-0 score, the Berkshire men are voicing hopes of enfeebling the mighty Princeton machine which they oppose in a few weeks. With such lofty aims it is doubtful that Williams is exceedingly worried over Saturday's Panther meeting.

Such is the team that journeys northward in the hopes of repeating last year's 27-19 victory over the Beckmen The Panthers will again be weakened by the list of minor injuries which handicapped them in their opening encounter. Although furnishing several thrilling plays and consistent performance in the Union contest, the Blue and White faces a superior aggregation in its second grid battle.

Massachusetts state was outclassed by its Purple rival last week in everything except passing. Only three forward passes were attempted by the Williamstown team, while the opposition's backfield star, Stewart, resorted to passing on a large scale. The polished Purple running attack was made possible by quarterback Salsich and half-backs Stanley and Holmes. Moseley, the Williams athlete who has bothered the Blue and White in the past in both hockey and baseball, contributed two place kicks after touchdowns in Saturday's pigskin tilt.

The Purple team is this year composed largely of veteran players, the outstanding performers all having had four years' experience on Purple teams. The sophomore recruits were members of last season's undefeated freshman eleven.

Freshmen Answer First Call for Grid Candidates

The first call for freshman football candidates was answered Friday when thirty-one men reported to Coach Nelson at the opening practice.

The daily drills will be composed of calisthenics, after which the linemen will be instructed in stance and charging, and the backs in passing, kicking, blocking and running the ball. Towards the end of each session the squad as a whole will go over the various plays in an attempt to perfect them before the opener with the St. Lawrence frosh on October 12.

Those reporting for the first practice were: Adriance, Boardman, Blanchette, Buttolph, Carr, Casey, Clarke, Cole, Cushman, Dailey, Doolittle, Feldman, Golembeske, Greene, Keffer, King, Kinsey, Kirk, Livingston, Lathrop, Meserve, Murray, Newcomb, Pfeffer, Rohrer, Scheuchzer, Skinner, Tracy, Vancelette, Warner, Wisell.

PRESIDENT MOODY TALKS ON "VALUES"

to acquire a sense of value, apart from money.

"You find in college that true education is learning to do many things that should be done, at a definite time, and whether you want to do them or not,"

Wisdom in spending time, energy and mental effort will determine the happiness of college life and success after graduation,

But four years will also indicate how to use the knowledge gained, it will give a mental discipline and sense of real value that will spell the difference between real success and failure in life, President Moody concluded.
